Fishing Str. and Crew Safe at Block Island.

WAS LOCATED BY TIMES MAN.

Hope for Her Return Had Been Almost Abandoned.

The little gasoline fishing steamer Varuna, for whose safety there have been the gravest fears for some time, has been heard from and is all right.

In conversation yesterday with one of the owners, the TIMES representative learned that the little craft had fitted for two weeks and had been gone just a month and [not a word had been heard from her, either by report from other vessels or by letter from any of her crew.

For some time her owners had been very anxious about her safety and the relatives of those in her feared that she would never return. So grave were the fears for her safety that they had almost decided to give her up if she did not arrive or no tidings were heard from her today.

The owners said they had telegraphed and written to New Bedford, Newport, Provincetown and points along the Maine coast and in all cases received the bad news that she had not been at any of these ports and had not been heard from.

The TIMES man suggested that word be sent to the TIMES' correspondent at Block Island inquiring if the craft had been there. Acting upon his suggestion, this was done and soon the glad reply was received that she was safe and had been fishing off there all the time. This good word was quickly conveyed to the families of those in the craft and thus when hope was almost gone, they were able to rejoice that instead of being obliged to give up hope, they were able to joyfully tell their friends that the Varuna and all on board had been heard from and were all right.

The craft is engaged in mackereling, under command of Capt. Eugene Dixon with two men named Dixon, a brother of the skipper, and Comeau, for crew.

STRUCK THEM RICH.

Sch. Harry G. French at Southwest Harbor This Morning.

Had a Big Fare of Salt and Fresh Mackerel.

Sch. Harry G. French, Capt. Rufus McKay, arrived at Southwest Harbor this morning with 13,000 fresh mackerel which he sold there at 10 cents apiece. Besides the fresh ones the French had on board over 200 barrels of salt mackerel.

Capt. McKay reports that it has been foggy during the past three or four days and the fleet has had no chance to fish.

A letter from one of the crew of sch. F. W. Homans reports her at the Magdalene Islands with 220 barrels of salt mackerel. There seems to be plenty of mackerel but the weather was bad.

Salt mackerel continue in light receipt. There are two arrivals today, sch. Richard Wainwright with 220 barrels of salt fish and sch. James S. Steele with 140 barrels.

Good Stocks.

Sch. Judique, Capt. William Goodwin, stocked $2230 on her recent shack trip, the crew sharing $51.34.

Sch. Fanny A. Smith, Capt. George Smith, stocked $2203 on her recent shack trip.

On account of the high prices, sch. Manhasset, Capt. Joseph Hatch, will stock about $2500 on her haddock fare landed at Boston yesterday.

LOUISBURG NOTES.

Mackerel Have Struck In Around That Port.

Codfishermen and Bankers Are Doing But Little.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Louisburg, C. B.—Mackerel have struck in about the shore in large numbers but there have been no catches made here either with nets or on the hook. Dogfish are also plentiful and there is an abundance of pollock about the fishing grounds. Squid have put in appearance, but they are not nearly so plentiful as in former years. This has been the latest season ever known for squid to strike in hereabouts.

There is good fishing on the inshore grounds. About 14 miles from Seatarie the Lunenburg sch. Yosemite took 250 quintals in two and a half days. The sch. Carlton Bell of Boothbay on August 31 took 40 quintals about seven miles from this harbor.

White fishing is good inshore; vessels arriving from the banks report fish scarce. Sch. Fanny W. Freeman of Provincetown, in here a few days ago, reports little or no fish on Quero, and what was more surprising, there was no squid there where they are generally found in abundance.
